Noted American
Financier

Passed Away in Rome
at an Early Hour
This Morning

Rome, March 31.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the noted American financier, died at 12.05 this morning, (Rome time) aged 75 years.

Up to Saturday night, Mr. Morgan's son in law, Herbert L. Satterlee, and the physicians made every effort to conceal Mr. Morgan's true condition.

Dr. M. Allen Starr, of New York, the noted nerve specialist, was summoned from Naples. Dr. Starr had already made an examination of Mr. Morgan on the latter's return to Naples from Cairo. He reached here Saturday night and visited Mr. Morgan immediately. He visited him again yesterday morning, and for a third time in the evening. Prof. Giuseppe Bastianelli, and Dr. George A. Dixon also were in attendance.

Statement By Physicians
Soon after the examination the physicians who are in complete accord on the diagnosis, made the following statement:

"A week ago Mr. Morgan was persuaded to go to bed and remain there to conserve his strength. Then

SOMERSWORTH POLICE OFFICER MAKES CHARGES

Weeden Accuses the Police
Commissioners With All Kinds of Irregularities.

Somersworth, March 30.—The dismissal of Patrolman John E. Weeden by the local police commission has caused a sensation in the city. Yesterday Mr. Weeden came out openly with public statements concerning the doings of the commission since he has been a member of the police force from Nov. 1, 1911. Much unfavorable comment is being heard about the city on the action of the police commission when they dismissed Mr. Weeden without stating reasons for so doing and also without a notice or hearing.

In his public statement Mr. Weeden asks why officer Joy allowed a pool room on his beat to be open at night an hour later than they should, also if the commission is satisfied with the way Mr. Joy acted on the night of the Burnette-Clarke shooting affair. Weeden also alleges that Joy received money and signed warrants for men that Weeden arrested, that on the night of a certain shooting affair Joy did not even make an investigation, and that he failed to attend to his duty on many occasions. For a long time it has been known that Mr. Joy and Mr. Weeden were not on speaking terms, but it was not known until lately, when Mr. Weeden publicly attacked Mr. Joy, that they were so strongly against each other.

Mr. Weeden also wishes to know why facts presented to the police commission six months ago were brushed up rather than acted upon. The police commission which consists of George Hill, Samuel Welch, and Albert Colburn, has as yet made no public statements, but sentiment is so strongly against them that they probably will be obliged to make some move soon.

Mr. Weeden comes out individually with an attack on Mr. Hill, a republican member of the police commission, whose term of office expires Tuesday. Mr. Weeden claims that he will ask further questions for the commission to answer.

Martin, millionaire philanthropist of New York, who resided at Ritz Point during the summer of 1912, was concluded in this city Saturday night, and Henry A. Willard the commissioner appointed by the court in New York, left Sunday accompanied by Col. John H. Partick executor of the last will. Depositions will be taken in New York the next few days.

SUMMER CAPITAL IN THIS STATE

President Wilson Will Occupy the Churchill Place at Cornish for Summer White House

Cornish, N. H., March 30.—President Wilson has chosen the home of Winston Churchill, located on the Cornish river, as his summer capital, according to a telegram received here today from Mr. Churchill, who is now in Santa Barbara, Calif.

The message was directed to E. P. Roberts manager of the Churchill estate and contained instructions for getting the place in readiness for the President's occupancy.

Harlakenden House as the Churchill property is known, is a two story brick structure, situated on a hill three miles beyond Windsor, Vt. It commands a view of the Connecticut river valley and of the Green Mountains.

Between 600 and 700 acres of rolling farm land and fragrant pine groves give the estate the seclusion the President desires. Nearby is an artist colony where Maxfield Parrish, Clayton Cox, and others come during the summer and where the late Augustus St. Gaudens, the sculptor, spent many vacations.

On the Churchill estate are two seven room cottages where the executive officers can be established, and where the President's attendants may live. A tennis court adjoins the mansion house and at the foot of the hill the Connecticut river offers opportunity for boating.

Windsor, Vt., is the port of entry to Cornish. The road to Harlakenden House lies over an old wooden toll bridge across the Connecticut.

Manager Roberts said that two men were looking at the place two weeks ago today, but he did not know for whom they were acting until he received the telegram today from Mr. Churchill.

remain at the local ticket office for about a month until Mr. Hall familiarizes himself with the duties of the office. Mr. Chesley has been appointed ticket agent at Old Orchard for the summer months and will enter upon his new duties on June 1.

CITY FACING BOTH FOOD AND WATER FAMINE

15,000 Driven From Their Homes in Huntington,
West Virginia.

Huntington, W. Va., March 30.—The city tonight is in total darkness, is facing both a food and water famine. 15,000 out of the 40,000 inhabitants are homeless, 12 persons are reported missing, and the property damage according to close estimates of leading business men will amount to nearly $1,000,000.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the river reached a stage of 66.3 feet, the highest in the history of Huntington and is now stationary.

The entire business section is inundated, water being up to the second floors of all buildings.

Gov. H. D. Hatfield arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight on a special train from Charleston. The train brought supplies, motor boats and skiffs, which are being used to rescue hundreds who are in need. The local military company has taken charge of the rescue work and is pushing it forward just as rapidly as conditions will permit.

The electric light plant has been forced to shut down, and this afternoon the gas supply was shut off as a precautionary measure to prevent fires and explosions.

Although supplies have reached here from Charleston, the city is still in great need of both food and water.

Huntington with the exception of one telephone line is cut off from the world.

William Sullivan whose wife and children were rescued Saturday, committed suicide by taking poison when he found that his life could not be saved.

Major Chapman who is at the head of the relief committee, is now being given aid by Governor Hatfield, and members of the chamber of commerce of Charleston.

Just how many lives have been lost will not be known until the conditions will permit a thorough investigation of all houses.

CONCORD LETTER

Doings of the Legislature
Will Have to Hustle to Adjourn in April.

Concord, March 31.—The chief event in the 13th week of the legislative session was the receipt of the long-expected message from Governor Feltner on the subject of railroad rates. In it he included a letter from President Mellon of the Boston & Maine in which the latter said that after making every effort to run the railroad on an economical basis he was forced to the conclusion that "the service which the public demands cannot be rendered upon the existing rates" and that therefore he was compelled to ask the state of New Hampshire for a new schedule of fares and freights on the Boston & Maine.

Mr. Feltner's letter concluded: "It has been gratifying to me during the trying times of the last six months to find in the state of New Hampshire an entire absence of hostile and unmerited criticism whatever on the part of the press, the people or the public authorities. If the legislature will give to me some latitude in working out this rate problem under the control of its public authorities I will endeavor to show to the people of New Hampshire that the good will which has been shown towards me, and the progress which I represent, has not been misplaced."

Governor Feltner acknowledged that "the returns for the last four months have not been reassuring" as to the railroad's future, did not make any direct recommendation on the subject of what legislation is needed, but did make the suggestion that the present suspension of the laws of 1882 and 1889 be continued for two more years, and that in the meantime the railroad and public service commission act together in preparing a new schedule of rates for final approval by the legislature of 1915. Under no circumstances, he said, could he recommend the repeal of the acts of 1882 and 1889.

For the consideration of this part of the governor's message a special joint committee was at once appointed and began work promptly on Friday. It consists of Senators Bode, Bliss and W. E. Emerson, Representatives Stevens of Londonderry, Burleigh of Franklin, Dwyer of Lebanon, Bartlett of Hanover, and Kinney of Claremont. Judge James W. Hendick and Allen Hoffs Esq., have been engaged as counsel for the state and the public service commissioners are sitting with the committee in an advisory capacity.

Other subjects dealt with in the governor's message included recommendations for the union of the agricultural, forestry and moth pest departments under one head with a close connection with the state agricultural college; a board of control and purchasing agent for the state hospital, sanatorium, school for feeble-minded and industrial school; reduction in bulk of state reports; and the employment of state house clerks in their otherwise leisure moments in making copies of old town records.

It is expected that bills embodying these recommendations will be introduced from committee during the coming week. Quite a number of bills carrying out the suggestions of the governor's message were introduced last week and one of them, for the representation of New Hampshire in the New England railroad conference, passed both branches.

In all 21 new bills were introduced in the legislature last week and the total of bills passed in both branches was 61 and of bills killed 26. No disputed matters were finally settled, the lack of two-thirds of the membership in the house and at times of a quorum even making it necessary to schedule all vexatious questions for this week and next.

Raising the salaries of the higher court justices and exempting from taxation stocks and bonds issued and owned in New Hampshire were discussed on Tuesday with adverse votes on both propositions.

On Wednesday spirited attempts to defeat the chartering of a new bank in Lebanon failed in the forenoon; while in the afternoon the Christian Scientists won a hard fight for the amendment in accordance with their desires of a bill regulating the practice of medicine in the state.

Among the house bills which passed the senate during the week were acts creating a new ward in Manchester and appropriating $10,000 for taking New Hampshire veterans of the Civil war to the semi-centennial celebration of the battle of Gettysburg.

Beginning on Wednesday of this week the house will meet at 10 o'clock in the morning instead of 11, as heretofore, with the hope of adjourning in the working day. If final adjournment is to be taken on April 25, as is now the plan, it will be necessary to add another day to each working week by the legislature remaining here for Friday sessions. But 15th more than half of the business of the session is today completed, judging by the number of bills introduced and finally acted upon, and less than one-half, judging by the relative importance of the matters decided and still left open.

The special committee on bribery investigation continued its sessions on Friday. Representatives Clifford L. Snow of Manchester, who seems to be the only member of the legislature under fire thus far was present but by advice of his counsel, N. E. Martin Esq. of this city, declined to make any statement until all the evidence against him has been presented, which may be at an adjourned meeting of the committee this afternoon.

At the hearing on Friday, Philip H. Faulkner of Keene, secretary of the Republican state committee testified that Snow offered him nine votes of Democratic legislators for Franklin Worcester for governor for 1909 and Col. Elmer S. Titton of Laconia, recently Republican candidate for the executive council, testified to similar advances towards him.

A NEEDLESS ALARM

The fire department responded to a needless alarm at 121 Market street on Sunday forenoon. The fire started in a box of wood in a pool room which had smoldered possibly all night and had burned a hole in the floor into the dye house of M. H. Allen & Son. The damage was very small and a still alarm would have saved the city more than the damage of the fire.

Smiling Hans Wagner Out for

Mr. Spence Ark, March 31.—Judging by the manner in which Hans Wagner carried around the diamond in the recent series with the Boston Red Sox, it surely looks as though the veteran shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates will have another great season to add to his already brilliant record. The flying Dutchman batted, fielded and ran the bases like a youngster. Last spring Wagner did not show up so well at the training camp. Many critics were of the opinion that Father Time was beginning to take hold of the Pirates' shortstop. However, Wagner and fooled the wise ones and had a fine year in all departments. Now that he will start the campaign in good conditions the experts believe that he will give Ty Cobb a good run for the batting honors of the major leagues. Wagner celebrated his 39th birthday recently and has been in harness longer than any other player in the major leagues.

MORGAN IS DEAD

Wednesday afternoon he did very well under this regime; he rested and slept without the aid of drugs and took a satisfactory amount of nourishment.

"Wednesday afternoon he began to refuse food, and since then it has been impossible to nourish him. He has lost weight and strength very rapidly. His nervous system is showing this, and it has added to the strain seriously."

"Mr. Morgan has not developed any organic trouble, but is so exceedingly weak that his present condition must be considered most critical."

The only nourishment which the patient has been able to receive for several days has been through injections, to which the physicians had to recourse, and they fear that this is not sufficient to sustain him for any length of time.

Dr. Starr was started at the change in Mr. Morgan's appearance since he saw him only a short time ago at Naples, and was much concerned again yesterday, over the change which has occurred even since the previous night.

SNOW AGAIN
UNDER FIRE

In connection with the investigations being made by the bribery committee of the legislature, and in which he name of Representative Clifford L. Snow of Manchester frequently appears, it is reported that the inquiry may take a turn in the direction of the 30-cent gas bill, of which Mr. Snow was the author.

Mr. Snow introduced the bill, and it is a matter of current report that subsequently the head of the Peoples Light company in Manchester Mr. Walter G. Africa was approached by a messenger, who stated that the gas bill could be taken care of and killed for a stated sum, $200. Mr. Africa is said to have made reply that the company which he had the honor to represent did not do business in that way and refused to entertain any such proposition.

The gas bill was indefinitely postponed in the house, but there is a motion on record, made by Representative Elliot C. Lambert of ward 2, for its reconsideration.

Judge Thomas H. Shires who returned on Friday from a business trip to England received a cordial welcome at city hall. He was in England but six days and reports a very interesting time.

(X)—Roughly estimated

Investigations yesterday tended to confirm the estimates of fewer than 500 deaths in the floods that swept over a score of cities in Ohio and Indiana last week.

As the waters receded from Dayton, Columbus and other places, leaving a thick coating of mud, alarm was caused by a rapid rise of the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers, inundating parts of cities along their banks.

There is not much danger of loss of life in these places, however, as the inhabitants have hills to flee to and are accustomed to floods.

Revised reports indicate that the number drowned in Dayton may not exceed 150, although there are those who say the number will be much greater.

The death list at Piquette, O., fell off from the estimate of 50 to 12 known dead.

Latest estimates place dead in Ohio at 421 and Indiana at 46.

Flood in Ohio River has driven nearly 15,000 from homes in Kentucky and 3500 houses are under water. Newport and Covington surrounded. Railroad traffic virtually suspended at Cincinnati.

Sec. of War Garrison reports to President Wilson that relief work at Dayton, O., is progressing satisfactorily. Will proceed to Cincinnati and then to Columbus.

Dayton faces water famine and general appeal for shipments of pure bottled water is made. Medical supplies also short.

Postmasters of United States navy ordered to Ohio to distribute clothing and provisions sent by special train from New York.

Ohio river broke through levee at Lawrenceburg Ind., driving residents to highland. Telephone Exchange abandoned.

Searchers recovered 61 bodies from debris in Columbus. Practically all drowned in city transferred to dry ground.

Supplies reach Zanesville, O., covering last two miles by wagon, Martial law in force.

Foreign diplomats tender condolences to Sec. Bryan.

Newcomertown, O., where 3000 have been isolated since Tuesday, again secures wide connection. None dead.

Pontsmouth, O., on fire in several sections. Firemen helpless because of flood.

Roscon's flood relief fund up to $124,000.

Operators Live on Cabbages

Dayton, O., March 30.—Nine western Union operators were marooned in their office for 42 hours. They subsisted on a barrel of cabbage which floated down the alley at the side of the building. Another refugee in this place was a horse which stood in the water for 24 hours and partook liberally of the cabbage. Then suddenly he hopped into the street and was drowned.

Died Trying to Save Hermit

Connersville, Ind., March 30.—Blair Schuster was drowned Thursday night in an attempt to cross the West Fork of White river at Brookville to rescue Harlan Kennedy, a hermit, formerly a Methodist minister.

Two hundred and fifty children rescued from the flood have only night clothes and wagon trains are carrying food and clothing from Connersville to the destitute people.

Rich and Poor Share Alike

Dayton, O., March 30.—Mrs. Frank Carrell, worth millions and part owner of the National Cash Register company sent an appeal to the relief workers at the big plant asking that food be sent to her as she was marooned in her home. The same boat in which her food supplies were sent also carried supplies to Mary Smith, poor negro woman prisoner in a humble frame dwelling.

Odd Sources of Supplies

Columbus, O., March 30.—While marooned and starving with half a dozen others in a factory, Maurice Okeefe said a small grocery store was carried down stream and lodged against their refuge. They got an ample supply of canned goods and lived in comparative comfort until rescued. L. L. Mix, poultry breeder marooned with 25 others in his home, lived on 250 incubator eggs he had in his home. When George Roller saw the water

TURKISH LINES ABOUT
CONSTANTINOPLE BROKEN

Tehran, Persia, has been broken, according to Sofia advices, and the victorious Bulgarians are advancing on Constantinople. The line was pierced at Lake Doekas on the extreme Turkish right. Heavy fighting also is reported at Bayuk Chikmedye at the extreme left of the Turkish line, while the center has been hammered for days. If the break in the line is in force the Bulgarians will be able to turn the Turks out of the whole line of defenses. While there are other points where the Turks might make a stand before Constantinople is reached, reaching the future by the time it is doubtful if the Turkish army has the sand to do it. If the despatches are to be taken at their face value Montenegro is to be made the Balkan goal. It is stated that the great Powers of Europe intend to make a naval demonstration off the Montenegrin coast, owing to King Nicholas refusal to forego his right to make war on Turkey. This would be a spectacle even greater than that of the blockade of Crete when the guns of civilized Europe were used to maintain the authority and sovereignty of the Moslems in that island. If Montenegro is coerced out of Secularism in the interest of an autonomous Albania which is a palpable fiction set up by Austria to do Serbia out of an outlet on the Adriatic Europe will be guilty of another great injustice. It means a cowardly surrender to the advance of a heterogeneous empire which seeks to weaken by every means at its disposal the new Slave Power that has arisen on its frontier. In stealing Bosnia and Herzegovina from Turkey without firing a shot Austria absorbed a large Slave population whose sympathies are wholly with the Balkan allies. A strong and vigorous Serbia and an enlarged Montenegro would be a disturbing element particularly if when Emperor Francis Joseph dies the political and geographical crazy-quilt called Austro-Hungary seeks to readjust itself. If in the coming attack on Secularism which Nicholas declares he will make in defiance of the Powers the city should fall an interesting situation is likely to develop.

stairs he took the family cow upstairs with his family. They lived on milk for four days.

A dozen telephone girls down at Miamisburg, below Dayton, stuck to their posts and were marooned above a grocery. They managed to cut a hole through the floor and with lines fished canned goods and loaves of bread from the water in the store. On this food they lived for two days.

THE PASSING OF THE FIRE
HORSE

(From the New York Sun.)

There are fears for things and things are fears for things. So we paraphrase the great Virginia line on reading of the projected automobile of the New York fire department. In London the picturesque old horse omnibus has gone, and with his merry cymbal driver, who quips have afforded copy for Punch for two generations; an occasional hansom cab still skitters dangerously about the streets, glided by automobile traffic, and here and there a pitiful relic of the past may be seen a dingy four wheeled growler, that looks as if it had strayed out of a charitable institution for destitute antiquities.

A similar process only less conspicuous than in London because the horse drawn vehicle had less of tradition crusted around it, has been going on in New York and other great cities of the world. The glory of the horse is almost departed. Only in one sphere of city life did it remain supreme, unapproachable. All the romance that city streets afford nothing is to be compared to the spectacular dash of the fire engine drawn by three magnificent straining steeds.

Thorough himself would have rejoiced guide the course of such an equipage. Soon we shall have looked our last on the romantic sight. In five years the fire department expects to have eliminated the last horse from its active list and the victory of the all conquering automobile will be complete. Sentiment must give way to efficiency, and the automobile can travel faster and is of more enduring quality than the horse. But if we dare not allow our efficiency to be impaired by our sentiment at least we have suffered to indulge a passing tear for the latter. The machine driven fire engine can never fill the place of that picturesque team of galloping horses. It may travel forty miles an hour in stead of twenty, but it cannot give the vibrant impression of racing speed that we get from the living animal. Nor will the engines respond sentimentally to the various fire calls, quivering with excitement as they are harnessed for action and ready with the given word to dash from the stable on their errand of rescue.

A hint to the increased efficiency of the fire department and another on drunk standing, to the gallant animals, the end of whose faithful service is in sight.

RURAL ORIGIN OF TYPHOID

(From the New York Herald)

The recently issued reprint of the department of health of the city of New York on the rural origin of much of the typhoid fever in large cities is a timely document with regard to legislation now pending at Albany for the reorganization of health control in smaller towns and country places.

The conclusion is that one fourth of the typhoid fever cases in New York city is due to contaminated milk. Another one fourth of New York's typhoid infections are acquired while our city dwellers are out of town, so that at least one half of the cases seen here are of directly rural origin.

The incident of the disease in the different boroughs of New York city is nearly the same. As all of the boroughs draw water from very different sources, the infection evidently is not due to water, but to other factors common to all parts of the city, and these are represented mainly by the food, oysters, milk, and certain vegetables eaten raw.

The necessity for more careful sanitation of the country districts to protect city health as well as their becomes evident then. Our department of health must ask for help through the reorganization of the sanitary control of the country districts with which we are in close relation.

Slander of Public Men.

Cardinal O'Connell remarks that the rest of the world looks on while America tears its public men to shreds. Not only is the cardinal right, but he has put his finger on a fault in our political system which, perhaps more than any one other, deters many of our best equipped men from entering politics. The peculiarly sinister phase of the great American game of mud-slinging lines in the fact that much of the vilification—true and untrue—is directed against a man's private life. Many a man, otherwise admirably qualified for public life, refuses to give his services to the country mainly because he fears the malicious attacks and the dirty innuendo to which he—and often his family—will be subjected. They do these things better in England. Parliamentary opponents, both in and out of the House, may sling one another to the queen's taste; they may denounce one another as political traitors seeking to destroy the empire—but private affairs are left alone—and opponents who but a short time before were locked in the deadly combat of debate may later be seen—frock-coated and hatted—proceeding amicably, arm in arm, to the nearest club. They have learned what our younger country still has to learn—that a man is not necessarily a liar, a scoundrel and a libertine merely because he votes the other way.—Boston Journal.

It is refreshing to note the Journal's position in regard to muck-raking. This is the right sort of progressiveness. Let the good work go on!

Publishing the Session Laws.

As one reads along through the governor's recommendations you could almost expect to read as the next one that Secretary of State Pearson should also act as janitor of the State House and should take the noon hour for stoking the furnace. His recommendation that a more economical method be devised for distributing the State Laws other than through the newspapers was one that other economists have advanced. Not long ago a hot fight was waged in the legislature on this matter, led by D. C. Remick. After a long investigation and a careful comparison wherein results were compared, with the way it is done in the other states which the governor has cited, it was shown for absolute results the present plan was by far the best and most economical. Mighty few of the Session Laws will ever reach the hands of the taxpayers if the state waits for the citizens to send to the secretary of state for a copy. The real result will be that annually what cost thousands of dollars to print will be piled in the storeroom in the basement of the State House and eventually sold for waste paper. It is now within a month of the time when the legislature will adjourn. A careful investigation of every department as he has recommended would keep the legislature in session half the summer and at the next legislature, when action of an intelligent nature might be had, not one based upon a half-baked investigation.—Milford Cabinet.

Looking Towards the Abolition of Toll Bridges.

There is some prospect of legislation this session looking towards the freeing of the toll bridges in this section. The bill now in the legislature may get through. Some anonymous writer in Exeter has mailed a letter to the members from Rockingham county asking them to vote against its passage on the ground that it will increase the county tax. The bill simply enables the county, with the co-operation of the state of Maine, to free the bridge at some time. It is a wicked shame for Rockingham county in any way to block this bill. There ought to be men in Concord with courage enough to vote for progress. Toll bridges have served their time, but they cannot be put out of use without proper compensation. The men who have built them are public benefactors and they must be repaid for their property.

Most Cities Are Better Than Painted.

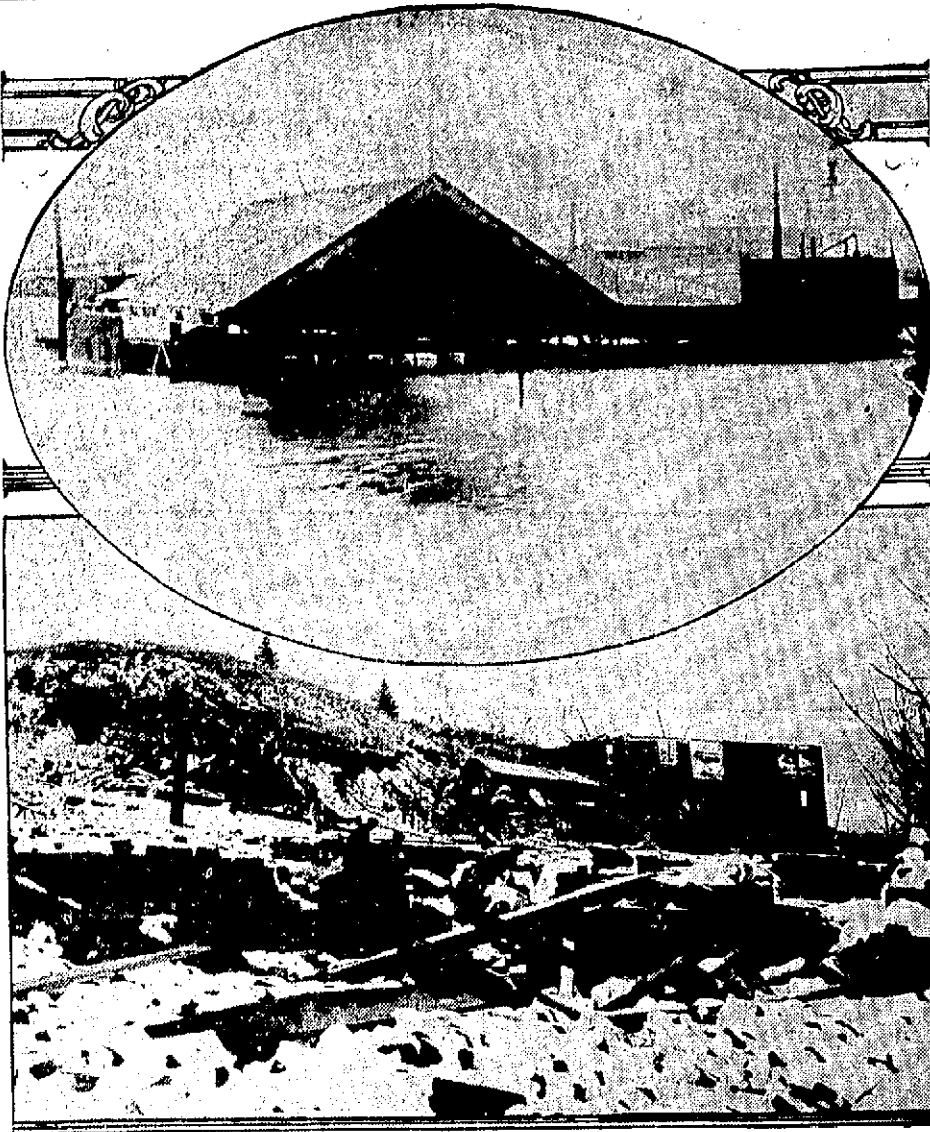

The Newburyport News is right when it defends the average city official in these terms: "Most of our cities are better, not worse, than they are pictured. Most city officials are more efficient and more reasonable than disappointed office-seekers or disgruntled politicians would have us believe. And the city can be better, and the officials can be better, if increasing emphasis is placed on the strong points of each. Muck may be exhibited a long time without much of anything being accomplished, but the contemplation of good and the praise of good leads to the production of more good. This is true of all cities. It is true of this one. If you doubt it, shape your actions in accordance with this suggestion and be convinced."

When will the citizen learn to size up the real "fakir?" That is the individual that we must rid every city of.

Continued rains in the eastern part of the country have added New York and sections of surrounding states to the list of flood swept commonwealths. Though the later torrents did not reach the magnitude of those that devastated Ohio and Indiana, vast damage was done over a wide area. Additional photographs and telegraphic reports continue to amplify tales of the horror that exists in Nebraska and Indiana. Above, at top, is a scene of the flood at Winthrop, N. Y. push don't knock. We must raise cash to erect a modern factory and then we must get a live, healthy industry to occupy it. This can be done and it is only necessary for all hands to get busy.

And so New Hampshire will be the National capital this summer. This is pleasing news to every resident of the old Granite State and we trust that President Wilson's selection of our state will not make our neighbors, Massachusetts and Maine, envious of our good fortune.

MESSIAHIC EXPECTATIONS.

Synopsis of a Sermon Preached at the Advent Christian Church by the Pastor, in a Series on the Second Advent.

Texts—Hob. 10:12-13: But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God, from henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool. Isa. 60:13: The glory of Lebanon shall come upon thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious.

We have been considering the second coming of Christ thus far with relation to human expectation. Today we desire to advance a step and consider it from the Divine. There is a tendency, on the part of our poor, weak natures, to limit the power and the glory of the Infinite God, and we need just such a revelation as he has given us in order that we may appreciate, even in a finite way, something of the ineffable splendor of those things, "which God hath prepared for those that love Him."

But, after all, is it not enough for us to know that he is Eternal, Omnipotent, an All-Wise and loving Father? Is it not enough, that he calls us to Himself and points the way to a holy, happy eternity? Let us, then, enter the sacred inclosure of Divine Revelation with becoming reverence with a prayer in our hearts that we may have that "spirit which is of God" that we may know the things that are freely given us of God.

The lexographer tells us that "expectation is the ground upon which something most excellent is expected to happen." And I am persuaded that there are splendid grounds for believeing, with relation to the Messiah, something most excellent is expected to happen. Let us observe the text: But this man? What man? Why, Jesus, the Lamb of God; Jesus, the Saviour of the world; Christ, the anointed, the coming King! Jesus, the only one whom we have record of being "caught up to the Heavens" and enthroned at God's right hand.

The text affirms, then, with relation to Him, that he "expecting" What? Till His enemies be made His footstool. Dr. Clarke mentions the well known custom of oriental monarchs to put their feet on the necks of the vanquished as emblematical of the state of subjugation to which they were reduced, and the total extinction of their power.

"Tis said of ancient Israel that in their rebellion against God that 'For all this His anger is not turned away, but His hand is stretched out still.' But there came a time when they cried out: 'Cruelly Him! Cruelly Him! His blood be on us and our children. We will not have this man to reign over us.' God took them at their word and answered with the Roman armies. So men today are presuming upon the mercy of God, 'despising the riches of His goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering,' not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth to repentance," but "treasuring up wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God."

Friend, you are a free moral agent; you may reject God's offers of reconciliation, and tread "under foot the Son of God," counting "the blood of the covenant wherewith you are sanctified an unholy thing," doing "despite to the spirit of grace," but remember, however unpopular the truth may be, God will hold you responsible.

"But this man" at God's right hand, expecting.

Think you, with God on the throne, that He will be disappointed? His enemies, who are they?

Well, you may say, "Those who conspired against Him and put Him to death." Yes, that is true; but is that all?

"Why, the many who have rejected His teachings and will have none of Him." And that's true, too. But with these subjugated, are there no others?

It seems to me that when God undertakes to subdue the enemies of His Son, that He will make a clean sweep of every unholy, hateful thing from Eden to Eden!

Among the first of these I mention that of Sin. What has it done? Sin robbed Eden of its beauty and purity; sin brought deprivation, and labor, and sorrow; sin has brought the curse of God upon the earth—the thistle and the thorn, from which men have a crown for the brow of the Crucified One; sin drove the cruel nails into the hands and the feet of the Son of God, and lifted the Cross to the crest of Calvary!

Sin? What has sin not done? It has stolen the bloom of purity from maidenhood and turned it into a thing of shame; it has ruined manhood, made in the image of the invisible God, and rendered it a spectacle of abhorrence which has wrung human hearts with anguish, and drawn tears of pity from the angels of Heaven.

It has whipped, and burned, and crucified, and tortured, and killed the servants of Jesus, and hung defiance and insult at the church of the living God, which Jesus shed his blood to redeem!

Al! how the Son of God must hate sin!

Miracle or miracles, is it not, that he loves the sinner?

Yes, sin has laid its desecrating, blighting, damning curse upon that which was once sweet, and pure, and noble, and true, and brought it captive to the cave of Giant Despair.

But, friends, there is hope! The Son sits at the right hand of the Father—expecting!

Think you, with God on the throne, that He will be disappointed?

Again, we may number as among the enemies of Jesus all who are in rebellion against Him.

Jesus was ushered into this world as the Prince of Peace, while heavenly choirs chanted their glorious strains of "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will toward men."

His very name should have won our hearts—"Immanuel—El," God with us! "Thou shalt call His name Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins."

He began His ministry with the most beneficent words that ever fell on human ear, and "all bare Him witness

STOMACH SOUR? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO?

"Pape's Diapiesin" Makes Upset Stomachs Feel Fine in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead refusing to digest or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste, in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapiesin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out of order stomach, and leave sufficient in the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out of order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapiesin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapiesin cranks as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about his splendid stomach preparation too, if you ever try a little for indigestion, or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and for ever rid your self of stomach trouble and indigestion.

and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth.

He healed the sick, cleansed the lepers and raised the dead, and "the people glorified God, saying that a great prophet is risen among us; and that God hath visited His people."

His enemies conspired to His arrest, but returned fruitless with the tribute, "Never man spake like this man!"

Summoned before the judgment seat on false accusations, the verdict of the ages was pronounced by Pilate when he said, "I find no fault in this just man."

Suspended between heaven and earth divine love triumphed over hate and he breathed that matchless prayer, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Yielding up His life amid the thickening heavens and the quaking earth, the final word was spoken by the terrified soldier, "Truly, this was the Son of God!"

Gracious, gentle, beneficent, pure, forgiving, divine, Jesus was God's olive branch to a rebellious world. Why was he not received? Simply because the world was rebellious, and "the carnal mind is enmity against God!"

Why is He not now received? Simply because, with all our progress, with all our boasted civilization, it is the same old wicked world, reveling in sin, and hating the Son of God for His very goodness. For "all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." And "if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."

Friends, do not think that you can give God conscientious service and retain the friendship of the world. John came fasting, and they said, He hath a devil. Jesus came eating and drinking, and they said, Behold a man gluttonous and a wine-bibber.

If you go with the world and engage in its frivolities, you will be set down by the world as a hypocrite; if you remain, you are equally certain to be called a crank. Do not waste time trying to please the world; it's a vain, thankless job. But see, rather, that ye walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto His kingdom and glory."

The spirit of the parable is true. "And He called His ten servants and delivered them ten pounds and said unto them, Occupy till I come. But His citizens hated Him, and sent a message after Him saying, We will not have this man to reign over us!"

However pretty we may talk, the world is in rebellion against the Son of God, and Satan is the arch conspirator. Look at Mexico, where the blood of the innocent has run rivers; look at Europe; rapine, and murder, and bloodshed, with so-called Christian nations looking on. Look into all the world, with its selfishness, its cruelty, its oppression and its vice. Look at Portsmouth with its haints of sin tolerated for years with scarcely a protest on the part of its citizenship.

What do these things mean? They mean that covetousness as crystallized into the American dollar rules the hearts of men rather than the pure spirit of Jesus who said, "Give to him that asketh of thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not away." They mean, in the larger sense, that Satan still has his grip on the "Kingdoms of this world," as he did in the days of the temptation of Jesus.

Will these unholy conditions always obtain? Is there no "Balm in Gilead"? Listen! Has it not been written by the prophet, "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in Heaven saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever."

Is Jehovah a covenant-keeping God? Will he break His word to His "only begotten Son?" Will the enemies always remain in the ascendant? Hear the words of the Almighty: "My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips."

And Jesus, the Messiah, is—expecting!

Think you, with God on the throne, that he will be disappointed? Our subject would certainly be incomplete if limited to the conquest of sin and of the enemies of Jesus; for Messianic expectations are not only destructive of all that is evil and undesirable, but they are constructive of all that is pure and good.

Not only will the debris of sin be removed, but the prophet Isaiah has translated for us the Heavenly vision of the earth made new: "The glory of Lebanon shall come upon thee, the fir tree, the pine tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of My feet glorious!" And again, "Thus saith the Lord, the Heaven is My throne, and the earth is My footstool."

And I am very sure that among the very first things that Jesus will be interested in is a resurrected and glorified humanity.

If Jesus has had His enemies, He has also had His friends; and, like their Lord, many of them have "been pierced through with many sorrows"; the bleeding ages have written their history in crimson, and the world, in its mockery, has scored a momentary triumph; but wait! the Recording Angel has written over against their names in the Lamb's Book of Life the inscription "Faithful unto death." And though they sleep in graves "unknotted, unloosed, and unloosed," the voice of Jehovah hath declared "They shall come again from the land of the enemy."

And Jesus will want to see them. It was no morbid curiosity on the part of Thomas who desired to see the prints of the nails and the mark of the spear. Rather, did he not seek confirmation of those things concerning which "they believed not for joy," and was not his heart full of love when he came and saw, then cast away his skepticism forever with the joyful cry, "My Lord, and my God?"

Yes, Jesus in like manner will want to look upon the once scoured faces and forms of those who have suffered and died for Him.

They will come again from the land of the enemy, transformed, glorified, immortalized, made equal unto the angels of God to die no more. Ah, yes; Jesus is expecting!

Then there is the question of His Kingdom. He is expecting to rule over this world in accordance with the promise of the Father: I will declare the decree; the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I shall give thee the nations for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.—Psa. 2:7-8.

But it will be a kingdom freed from all tumult, for it is to be a kingdom of peace; wars will forever cease. It will be a kingdom of purity, for He will "send forth His angels to gather out of His kingdom all things that offend and do iniquity." "And there shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and the Lamb shall be in it, and His servants shall serve Him." "And the nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it, and the kings of the earth bring their glory into it. . . . And there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's Book of Life." "I will make the place of My feet glorious." "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write, for these words are true and faithful."

Jesus, sitting at the right hand of the Father, expecting!

Think you, with God on the throne, that He will be disappointed?

WANT AMERICAN WOMEN TO INTERCEDE

London, March 30.—Mrs. H. R. Emerson of Detroit, Mich., assisted by Miss Scott-Troy of San Francisco and others, is trying to enlist the good offices of a number of American women married to titled Englishmen in order to secure the release of Miss Zelle Emerson from Holloway Jail, where she is serving a term of imprisonment for breaking windows in company with other militant suffragettes.

Miss Emerson who started a "hunger strike" has suffered much from forcible feeding. It is hoped by Mrs. Emerson that the support of the Duchess of Marlboro, who was Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt before her marriage, will be obtained. The Duchess has considerable influence and is a suffragist although not of the militant variety.

The United States Embassy cannot take any steps in the matter unless instructions are received from Washington because Miss Zelle Emerson is being treated in the same way as are the English women in prison for window breaking.

Mrs. Emerson says that her daughter had grown very thin and nervous as a consequence of self-starvation alternated with forcible feeding. "Her condition is extremely bad," said Mrs. L. Emerson. "While she has a stronger constitution than most of those who have undergone the same ordeal I greatly fear that her health will be permanently impaired."

Miss Zelle has been incarcerated five weeks and has three more to serve.

When it was suggested to Mrs. Emerson "Why do you not advise your daughter to eat the prison food?" she said: "She would never do that. It is a matter of principle."

Miss Emerson's cause has been enthusiastically espoused by Baron Von Horn of California, Oregon and Europe.

Miss Scott-Troy proposes to send Miss Zelle Emerson nightly outside Holloway Jail with American times and Baron Von Horn is organizing a guard of American men to protect the senders from insults. The distinguished himself last night by knocking down a hoodlum with his fists.

A body of 125 prominent suffragists has petitioned the Home Secretary to order an investigation into the matter.

acts of the police. They charge that the police have treated their prisoners inhumanely in many recent arrests. The Congress of the United Kingdom held this week at Weston-Super-Mare elected by a majority of more than two to one a resolution of sympathy with the militant suffragettes. There was a heated debate. The members last year negated a similar proposal by a smaller majority.

TAFT FORCE TO GUARD WILSON

Secret Service Men Stay at Their Posts for the New President.

Unless there are orders to the contrary from President Wilson or Mr. Tumulty, his secretary, the secret service guard for the new President will be James Sloan, L. C. Wheeler and Richard L. Jervis, all old and experienced men in the work. They are the same men who have been with President Taft—Sloan and Wheeler throughout his administration and Jervis for several years. Sloan is the senior of the trio. These men were the same as visited Portsmouth with the President Sloan went on the White House assignment with President Roosevelt 11 years ago. He has traveled in every state of the country with Roosevelt and Taft.

Wheeler has been the advance guard for the travel of the two Presidents. His duty is to visit each city or town in advance of the arrival of the chief executive and make arrangements with the city officials for thorough police protection. Likewise closing up the details of the reception to the President in each place, making suggestions as to the best manner of holding the reception so as to save time and to meet the convenience of the distinguished visitor. Through the police, Wheeler quickly learns if there are any bad men in the town likely to give trouble.

Sloan and Jervis travel with the President, keep close to him during every moment on and off the train watch those who approach him, and are alert every minute of the night and day except when the President is sleeping.

In Washington, when the President is on duty in the executive offices, at three men are on duty during the working hours of the chief executive. They scrutinize the callers at the executive offices and if a suspicious man or woman appears there one of the trio ascertains the fact, in conjunction with the police officers, and acts accordingly. The policemen at the door of the executive offices come in contact with the visitors first, and if the suspicious are aroused they quickly give the tip to the secret service of them. If the policemen fail to observe anything out of the ordinary in a crowd the secret service men investigate.

There is no record where either Roosevelt or Taft had unpleasant experiences from criminals or others. The use of secret service men at the White House did not begin until after the assassination of McKinley. One man was placed with Roosevelt at first. He was an operator named Craig. He was killed at Pittsfield, Mass., when a trolley car ran into the carriage containing the President, Craig and several others. The number of operators after that was gradually increased to three. In his travels in and around Washington the President has motor cycle policemen as an escort. There is an understanding between the secret service and the police department of the city that the police department is to look after the President in automobile and other trips where motor cycle oficers can be used. If the President goes to a dinner or other function in the city the secret service officers and the police officers work together. Traveling in his automobile, however, the President is followed by two men on motor cycles, keeping less than half a block behind him. Officers A. E. Brown and Eugene Davis have been the two men performing this duty as rear guard for President Taft.

The secretaries to the President always know where and when he is to go away from the White House. They notify the police department to have the motorcycle men ready. Brown and Davis have harnessed hundreds of gallons of gasoline in their fast machines while flying behind the fast-moving automobile of President Taft, who like nothing better than a swift run over the good roads in the district.

The secret service men have their greatest troubles with the police in cities away from Washington. Local authorities everywhere assign many police officers to give protection to the President. The policemen do not know the secret service men, who are in citizens' clothes. It often happens that a big policeman will collar a secret service man who is strolling close to the President, and the detective has trouble in explaining who he is. The blue-coated men have been persecuted in hanging on to the detectives, even after explanations, believing the stories told them are false.

At New Orleans some years ago Joe Murphy, now the head of the secret service in Boston, and who has been in duty with President Wilson at Trenton, was nabbed by policemen when they saw him climbing on President Taft's train. They would not listen to his explanation, and were hustling him away from the train to a station when Secretary Dickinson, traveling with the President, recognized Murphy and interceded for him. The cops were disposed to regard Dickinson with suspicion, and grew quite blustering with him for a minute or so. Similar incidents have often happened. The detectives have grown to expect this sort of thing from the cops in strange towns and carry identification cards to extricate them. Some times the cops regard these cards as part of the game to get to the President.—Washington Star.

FACTS CONCERNING NEW NECKWEAR

The shops are full of attractive neckwear. High collars and flat collars, frills, ruffs, jabots, ties and flat jabots are shown in lace and linen, cotton, silk, net, and ribbon. White and black and all colors of the rainbow as well as a few for which the rainbow can hardly be held responsible, are used in spring neckwear. Altogether it is so attractive and becoming that it is a temptation to exchange the air of being well dressed for allowance on neck fixtures.

A really expensive neckwear is not an extravagance. It outwears a cheap piece many months and even when it is no longer in the latest style, it gives to its wearer a look of well being and the air of being well dressed, that cheap neckwear never gives. A real lace stock with frill of net edged with lace a flat collar of linen collar and cuff set of artistic design and fine workmanship, any of five or six dollars. For any of them if carefully chosen will wear six or eight times as long as a cheaply made dollar collar.

No fabric has such universal popularity for neckwear as baby Irish lace. It was much used five years ago and, doubtless it will still be in style five years hence. There is one advantage which baby Irish has over other lace; any little pieces of it which are not worn can be utilized in underwear. An unworn piece in the middle of a flat collar can be utilized for a tiny koke in a nightgown. Short lengths of insertion which are unworn can be inserted in yokes of nightgowns and combinations; pieces of lace can also be used in making shirtwaists and lingerie frocks.

TO SPEND MILLION ON AERIAL NAVY

Berlin, March 30.—The German Admiralty's plans for a big aerial navy were published officially this afternoon. The air fleet is to cost $12,500,000, which is to be spread over the next five years and be entirely apart from that connected with the army, on which nearly $25,000,000 is to be spent.

A bill providing $700,000 as the first outlay on the admiralty's aerial fleet was introduced into the imperial parliament today. It calls for 10 naval dirigible balloons of the largest size, of which eight are to compose the active fleet and two to be held in reserve.

Fifty-four double revolving balloon boats into which the dirigibles will be able to enter regardless of the weather are to be erected and another two kept as a reserve.

A total of 50 aeroplanes, of which 26 are to form the active fleet and 24 the reserve, also are to be built and these are to be manned by a special corps of 1452 officers and men.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Washington, March 30.—Hereafter postmasters in the larger offices of the country are to be held strictly accountable for the time and personal attention they give their official duties. Postmaster General Burdison, announced Saturday that he proposed not merely to discourage but to stamp out the practice said to be followed by many first class and second class postmasters of imposing a considerable part of their duties upon subordinates in order to utilize the time for personal ends.

Furthermore the postmaster general in making recommendations for appointments in these offices, will require in addition to the usual qualifications, an assurance from the applicant that his whole business time will be devoted to the duties of the position.

SANITARY PRECAUTIONS

Dayton March 30.—Dr. William Cullen Rucker, assistant surgeon general of the United States public health service who came here from Washington at the direction of the secretary of the treasury with Surgeon General Rupert Blue, tonight gave the following outline of the sanitary conditions existing in the city:

A survey of conditions in Dayton to day shows that the sanitary situation is not so bad as was at first thought. Citizens have been warned to boil all drinking water and to bury refuse. City water is now flowing under 20-pound pressure. Sewers in some sections are again in operation. The only experts to have others working tomorrow.

The city has been divided into 15 sanitary districts and tonight physicians who have been sworn in as district sanitary officers are being instructed as to their precise duties as heads of these districts.

Blue and Rucker go to Hamilton tomorrow to observe the situation there.

Thomas C. Leckey Anxious About a Brother and Sister Living in Ohio.

Anxious as to the outcome of several relatives in the devastated section of Ohio, Thomas C. Leckey of this city has wired Gov. James M. Cox for information. The message telegraphed yesterday has not brought a reply from the governor, who Mr. Leckey assumes is handling thousands of similar appeals. Telegrams dispatched to the relatives also remain unanswered and Mr. Leckey fears that a brother and two sisters have perished.

Mr. Leckey is a Portsmouth tobacco dealer, and is one of the most widely known citizens in the city. He is a native of Sidney, O., which is situated on the banks of the Miami river in the district which has experienced the most suffering. He is thoroughly familiar with the territory because of a long experience gained in railroad and judging from the newspaper dispatches he has read the property of his relatives has been submerged in the flood.

He yesterday sent a telegram to the governor of the devastated state with the request that any knowledge of his brother and sisters be forwarded at once. In his telegram to the Governor Mr. Leckey said: "I have done service for you before," with the hope that the relationship of his family with the governor would cause an immediate reply. Governor Cox is prominent in Oddfellowship and Mr. Leckey's father was at the head of the state organization of Oddfellowship in Ohio.

Mr. Leckey received a letter last week written by one of his sisters on Easter Sunday shortly before she started for church. The letter expressed Easter greetings to her brother and family, and was written in a happy vein. The day after the letter was written the tornado struck the Miami valley. Then came the rain and upon thousands of homes and a money loss estimated in the millions.

Mr. Leckey has read through every newspaper obtainable, but has found no direct mention that would enable him to assume whether his brother and sisters have suffered.

To the many friends in Portsmouth who are anxious of the welfare of his relatives Mr. Leckey has told stories that coming from a stranger, might seem incredible in their description of the yearly spring floods in the Ohio valley. No newspaper report and no story by word of mouth, Mr. Leckey says can convey the swiftness of the suffering, and he recommends that the business men of Portsmouth immediately start a fund. "No matter the size of the fund he says, the suffering of at least one family might be alleviated by the people of this city."

SOCIETY PLEDGES $10.

Suggestion That Portsmouth Should Aid Flood Sufferers.

Editor The Herald—Having failed to notice in your valuable paper any call for a public meeting to raise funds for the aid of the flood sufferers I wish to say that our own congregation last evening pledged $10 whenever called for and as other cities and towns all over the country are calling the people out and combining their money, I am asking you to kindly publish this letter to the end that the honored mayor or some of your leading and influential ministers will call a public meeting for the purpose as stated above with the assurance that our little unit is ready and only awaits the election of a treasurer to represent our beautiful city of Portsmouth.
